

August 19, 2010

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

We have received a few inquiries as to whether Cargill Kitchen Solutions and our Sunny Fresh brand products are involved in the Wright County Egg recall of shell eggs. The short answer is no.

Additionally:

- Wright County Egg is not a direct supplier of Cargill Kitchen Solutions. Cargill buys most of its eggs from several dedicated suppliers, all of whom have high standards for food safety and animal welfare.
- Cargill Kitchen Solutions produces pasteurized and/or cooked egg products that have undergone a heat treatment to eliminate food borne pathogens such as Salmonella.

At Cargill Kitchen Solutions, food safety is embedded in our culture. We devote thousands of hours to food safety training every year and carefully monitor every critical control point, to ensure you receive a premium product that enhances your business and protects your reputation. For additional details, go to <http://www.cargill.com/company/businesses/cargill-kitchen-solutions/quality-assurance/index.jsp>

Additional recommendations regarding egg safety may be found at <http://www.foodsafety.gov/keep/types/eggs/index.html>